We Thank—

President E. H. Wilkins for the material from the school of Jean Frederic Oberlin used as an art theme in this book.

Miss Dorothy Hall and Dr. W. F. Bohn for material on the Future of Oberlin.

Mr. Fred. E. Gerberding of the Bush-Krebs Co., Louisville, for supervising the making of plates; also Artist Richey for original designs and art work.

REED S. DUNHAM
Editor

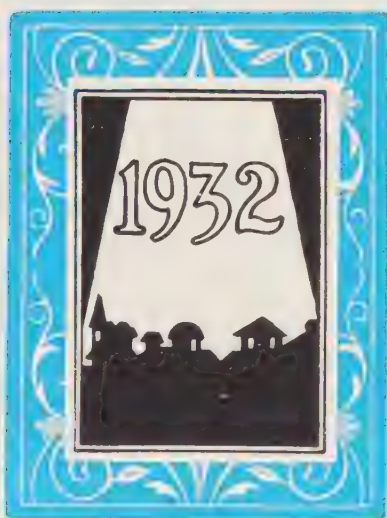

Mr. H. B. Weaver of the Pittsburgh Printing Company.

Mr. T. J. Rice for group and individual pictures.

Mr. Gordon S. Cook of the E. W. Bredemeier Co., Chicago, for the covers.

Those Juniors and underclass assistants pictured on Page 74; the Administration of the College for supplying lists and cooperating in business matters; members of the art classes who made pen sketches of future Oberlin buildings; the house representatives.

The editors wish to call attention to the work of Russell Loesch, staff photographer. His use of flash bulbs, probably for the first time in college annual photography, made possible pictures that could not have been obtained otherwise. His model in posing pictures, as was the editors' in making up pages, was the modern magazine.

This is the last Hi-O-Hi under the old plan. The editor and business manager of the 1933 book have been chosen from those Sophomores who assisted this year instead of by class election. Though the book will continue as a Junior publication, it will be nominally under the control of the Student Council with the editor and business manager appointed by a committee of class officers and council members. This piece of legislation was suggested by members of the present staff to assure continuity. The adoption of the Activities Fee will provide a definite income from subscriptions, automatically collected.

To comment at length on this particular Hi-O-Hi would be to slight the judgment and eyesight of our readers. Briefly: assimilate the idea of the modern magazine—Vanity Fair or the New Yorker, exponents of right angles and diagonal page layout; couple with that the outstanding features of last year's courageous experiment; add to that a mellowness of color and design to augment whatever sentiment a black and white picture may call up. We have attempted to achieve, then, something that is modern in a practical way yet not devoid of chromatic feeling.

Tryouts for the freshman club were held soon after Freshman Week and the members were announced October first. The Club serves as an organization to prepare men for varsity experience.

Under the leadership of William Tufts, the group of twenty-seven members appeared in three public concerts. Practises were held weekly up to spring vacation for the singing of choral and sacred music. The club held a "Rec" jointly with the freshmen women's group.

A large number responded for the try-outs last fall, and thirty-five members were chosen by Mr. J. E. Wirkler and Miss Betty Moll, directress of the club. Officers were chosen and weekly practices begun.

The club sang at an all-student service, for the high school, and the Republican Club. A "Rec" with the Freshmen Men's Glee Club and a picnic in the Spring comprised the social calendar.

The usual large number of Freshmen appeared for the try-outs last fall. Soon after the membership list was closed, officers were elected.

Although no plays were presented during the winter season, active preparations were begun for two one-act plays presented in April in conjunction with the varsity association. "The Rope," by Eugene O'Neil, was directed by Jane Eberlein. David Hyatt produced Christopher Morley's "Thursday Evening." The Club adopted the Experimental Theater Plan used by the varsity association and by previous Freshmen groups.

Freshman Dramatic Association

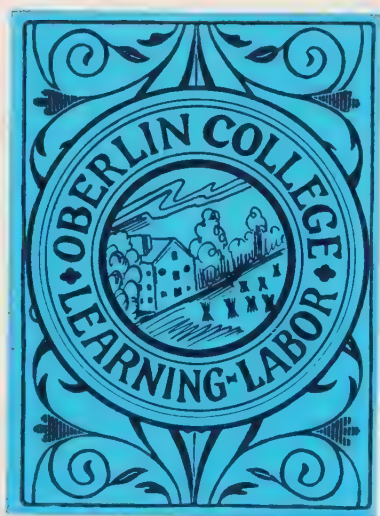

Men at last! These erstwhile neophytes are about to run home and take off three or four pairs of pants.

The men and women (boys and girls) in these pictures were victorious over the Sophs in the scraps, though there is no indication of it here.

The Freshmen had it easy last fall, at that. We wish the next class less luck.

LYLE E. CRANE

GRACE E. KLINE

Early in the fall of 1930, the Student Council presented the recommendations of the preceding Council on the new Honor System to the student body, by which it was enthusiastically adopted.

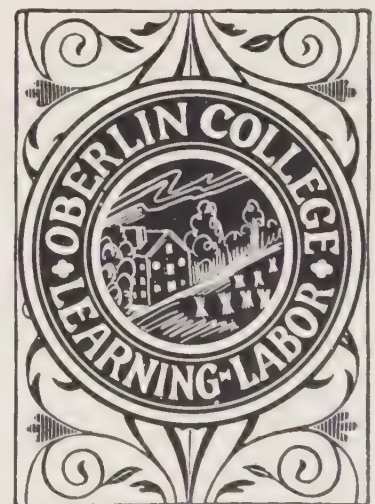

As conceived by President Craine, the Council's chief purpose was to organize the various student activities into one harmonious, non-duplicating system. A survey was made of the programs and finances of all organizations. The Hi-O-Hi was placed on a new basis, whereby the editor and business manager are to be appointed by the retiring staff, with the approval of a special committee.

*Bottom: O. Briley, president Women's League, L. Craine, president, H. Thomas, secretary, H. Doust, publications.

The great accomplishment of the year was the intensive study of the Student Activity Fee in other colleges and as it would apply to Oberlin. The new plan eliminates the Student Chest and all campaigns for subscriptions, concerts, and class dues. Besides placing Oberlin organizations on a sound financial basis, the Fee saves the students' money.

The 1930-1931 Men's Senate has occupied itself with administering the perennial affairs of men's activity. An enthusiastic football banquet, a pleasant basketball dinner, and a year of sane Freshman-Sophomore relations have been accomplished.

Important innovations were a much improved and more interesting cap burning ceremony for which Dick Irwin and his Class Relations Committee were largely responsible and a proposed plan for student distribution of Freshman Caps to take the place of the present sale through clothing stores.

The Women's Senate is a branch of the Women's League, dealing exclusively with the problems of house government. The second vice-president of the League presides over the monthly meetings.

The Senate roster includes the president and two vice-presidents of the League, chairman of the Honor committee, the presidents of women's houses, and representatives from the lower classes of the College and Conservatory.

The intensive research of the Honor Court culminated in the adoption of the new Honor system last autumn. Reports of the study were published and distributed to the student body, and the proposal was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

The emphasis in the new system is shifted from a judicial function in the Senate to education in view of prevention. The Honor system now depends almost entirely upon the attitude of the individual. The Men's Honor court works in co-ordination with the women's group.

Working jointly with the Men's Court, the Women's Honor Court contributed to the program instituted this year. The courts together consist of fourteen members, with the two chairmen working in coordination.

The honor pledge was abolished as it conflicted with the principles of a true honor system. Individuals witnessing violators are given freedom of action. Personal treatment is permissible in exceptional cases. The success of the new system will rest in the active cooperation of the student body.

The Women's League includes all college and conservatory women and is the governing body and promoter of all women's activities on the campus. It carries on its work through the Joint Council consisting of students and faculty members, and the Executive Board. Parts of its work are delegated to the Senate and the Honor Committee.

The major accomplishment for the year was the securing of eleven o'clock permission on Saturdays. Minor changes in underclass house rules were effected.

The Chest this year enjoyed as fair a share of success as befits Student Chests. While not reaching the anticipated goal, it was able to meet in full all obligations to the organizations dependent upon it.

The system of collecting delinquent pledges through the treasurer's office in February was used for the second year. The "Y's" and Shansi are particularly dependent on the Chest.

The Chance Creek and Green Spring Conference were forceful stimuli for a redefinition of the Y. M. C. A.'s place in Oberlin and suggested the projects for the year. Cooperation was the keynote in the "Sunday Night Movement" with its "faculty-at-homes" and "open houses". A system of freshman tutoring was instituted; likewise, student worship services of an original character.

The "Y" rendered assistance to the Causey Conference on religion, and sponsored an inter-racial discussion group and the Freshman "Y" Club.

Oberlin-in-Shansi is the Oberlin school in China founded soon after the Boxer Rebellion. The work is graded from elementary school through junior college. Each year Oberlin sends a man and a woman from the senior class to teach English and physical education there for two years. The delegates, chosen by a committee composed of members of the College and Conservatory classes, this year are Jane Smith and Roger Hawkins.

The Y.W.C.A. has based a large part of the year's work on the findings of a conference of students, faculty, and pastors held at Green Springs last September. The organization has been particularly interested in two definite needs: first, that of cooperating with plans for personnel guidance; secondly, that of helping to promote more general and wholesome fellowship. As an answer to the first, a tutoring plan for Freshmen has been worked out in cooperation with the Y.M.C.A.; and as a means to the solution of the second, faculty "at homes" and informal evenings in the King-Bosworth Room have been sponsored with the help of the men's organizations.

With these projects, the Y. W. C. A. has carried on its three-fold program of worship, fellowship, and service, and at the same time cooperated with other campus organizations in meeting student needs.

Aelioian is seventy-seven years old. During the first semester the society studied the history of the short story from Chaucer to the present time. This semester has been given to current magazines with special attention paid to their literary values and use of language.

Officers the first half were Nancy Marks, president, and Eleanor Brandt, program chairman. Mary Lou Miller and Harriet Reid succeeded them. Aelioian joins with the other Literary societies in the intersociety spring banquet and has a "Love Feast" at Commencement.

L. L. S., known as the Ladies' Literary Society when it was founded in 1835, was the first society of its kind in the world. Reverting to the original aim of literary study done sociably and not merely for social contact, L. L. S. this year has studied the seven fields of knowledge used as a basis for the college curriculum. Special attention was given to literature, fine arts, and music.

Social events include the Christmas party, the "Love Feast" at Commencement, and the inter-society banquet.

Promotion of friendship and progress toward a deeper appreciation of fine literature was the incentive for Phi Alpha Phi's founding. The study of Chinese and Hindu literature was undertaken during the first semester. Russia and its literature furnished the field of research for this half-year.

Social activities added to the pleasure of intellectual pursuits. A picnic in the fall, a Christmas party, and the "Rec" evening with Aelioian were the prominent events. The highlight of the season is the spring intersociety banquet and the "Love Feast."

Founded eighteen years ago by Dr. Florence Fitch, Sigma Gamma was the last to come into the fold of the women's literary societies. The theme of literary study during the first semester was Russian fiction. A modern trend denoted the activity of the second semester, and the works of modern poets and essayists were studied. Original papers on these subjects were a feature of the meetings.

The social program for the year includes the formal Christmas Banquet, the annual spring opera party, and the spring "Love Feast", to which alumni are invited.

The Review suffered a serious handicap in the resignation of C. C. Miller last June, just after he had organized the staff for a highly successful year.

typography of the paper improved throughout. Under increased competition, news stories were better-written and typographical errors reduced. An attempt was made to give the campus better news service; not only more complete news, but live and timely reports of student and faculty activities. The Review has consistently backed a program of constructive progress in student affairs. In furthering these objectives, Don Church and Jane Smith were highly instrumental.

The present editor, Don Church, has had long experience on the Review, and has begun a year of substantial progress for Oberlin's student newspaper.

The Olympian first appeared in September, 1930 with Howard Doust editor and Gene Delfs business manager. Professor Jelliffe provided the impetus. Marty Wilbur became editor with the October issue. His chief contribution was the attempt to balance literary and controversial material, the former lending to the magazine distinction, the latter keeping interest in it alive. The contributors have been undergraduates, alumni and faculty; the subject matter, story, essay, light essay, poetry, and illustration.

The Japanese Club was established in 1928 to promote a closer understanding between Japan and the States. Although membership is transitory, the original purpose is still maintained.

La Tertulia has offered an opportunity for a better knowledge of the people and customs of Spain, as well as actual practice in the use of the Spanish language. Lectures, discussions, and short plays directed and presented by the students have comprised the monthly meetings. The Outing Club offers an opportunity for active outdoor life. Two cabins have been built at Chance Creek and other improvements made on the College tract. Though this is only the second year of its existence, the club has been successful in giving its members a chance to gather in fellowship around the fireplaces in the "Lodge" and "Cabin". Monthly lectures, the foremost among which was the address of Admiral Byrd, were part of the year's program.

Each Wednesday and Saturday the pupils of the Waldbach school practiced "Notes and Singing." "I admire music, painting, and poetry—," said Oberlin; that fondness survived the rigors of pastoral duties and the poverty of Waldbach.

The Men's Board of the Conservatory is primarily a social organization, its membership including all men students in the Conservatory. This year it has been organized into four groups for social activities. The chairman of these groups and the officers of the board form the executive committee.

Plans this year have included four stags and a banquet. The Men's Board acts with the corresponding women's organization in social affairs involving both and also sponsors conservatory participation in athletics.

The Women's Board of the Conservatory is composed of nine class officers and meets as an executive committee for the purpose of considering all problems relative to conservatory women. The president or vice-president of the Senior class acts as chairman. In cooperation with the Men's Board, this group assists in planning social functions, such as the "Con Prom" and the Thanksgiving party. The board discusses and encourages participation in college functions by conservatory students.

The A Capella Choir was organized in 1929, under the direction of Olaf C. Christiansen, son of the director of the famous St. Olaf Choir. It includes sixty students of both the Conservatory and College. The choir trains its members in the best traditions of choral singing of four centuries, practicing four times a week.

The chorus broadcast on the Oberlin Easter program and took a short trip through Ohio during the spring recess.

The Conservatory Orchestra is composed of faculty and students and is directed by Maurice Kessler. The purpose of the orchestra is particularly to give ensemble experience to students by accompanying concertos at Senior Recitals and occasionally appearing on "Students' ". A portion of the band has also played for basketball games this winter. Other activities have included the fall concert and a part in the Oberlin radio broadcast over the Columbia chain. The director is Arthur Williams.

Football

A team's success depends in no small part upon the quality of the men upon whom the head coach can call for help in carrying out his plans. This year Oberlin was unusually well-fortified in this respect. Nilsson, Kiracofe, and Novotony were well-versed in the Oberlin system of play and knew the past performances and future possibilities of every man on the squad. This proved a great help to Coach Butler in his first year in the selection and handling of players.

COACH LYSLE K. BUTLER

Lysle K. Butler graduated from Oberlin in the class of 1925, studied a year at Columbia, accepted a position as coach at Ashtabula Harbor High School, and after two successful years there, went to Franklin College in Indiana where he remained until this year. At Oberlin, he immediately proved himself an able successor to Coach MacEachron and was "made," as far as his popularity was concerned, within a week after football practice started. He has been just as successful in his other work as in varsity athletics and has already taken his place in the long line of friendly and inspiring men who have coached Oberlin's teams in the past.

From the standpoint of games won and lost, last season was the worst since 1916; from the standpoint of team-play and morale, perhaps the best. Light and sadly inexperienced, but not discouraged by these handicaps, the team showed a steady improvement as indicated by the final games against Reserve and Miami. Captain Laird, Brann, Crouthamel, and Ranson stood out in line-play, and Beattie, a true triple-threat man, was in a class by himself among the backs.

Kenyon

Opening the season against Kenyon, Oberlin, outweighing her opponents for the first and last time, showed promise in winning 25-7.

(Line opens hole for Henry.)

Rochester

At Rochester, a big, fast full-back, driving through holes opened for him by a heavy line, proved too much for the light Yeomen, and they lost 13-0.

The marching band, numbering fifty this year for the first time, played and maneuvered better than ever before. It was a pleasantly conspicuous feature of all the home games and on Migration day.

("Smear Case.")

(Combined Oberlin, Case Bands.)

Case

The Case game was hard-fought and decided by the "breaks." Despite Warner's spectacular defensive play at left end, Case got a touchdown in the first half and held her lead until the gun was fired. Score, 7—2.

(Beattie gets off a punt.)

Wooster

With the Wooster game there appeared a new and resourceful Oberlin team which, although finally losing 14—12, put up a beautiful fight against Wooster's strong passing attacks.

("Hard Lines.")

Mt. Union at Alliance

Oberlin hit her lowest point both in spirit and play on the next Saturday against Mt. Union. Again a hard-hitting back, Grimes, proved impossible to stop. He scored, or made possible, four touchdowns. Mt. Union 25—Oberlin 0.

("In the clear.")

Akron

Against Akron, Oberlin suffered one lapse in her passing defense and lost 7—0, although Akron's star back, Cochran, was stopped in his tracks.

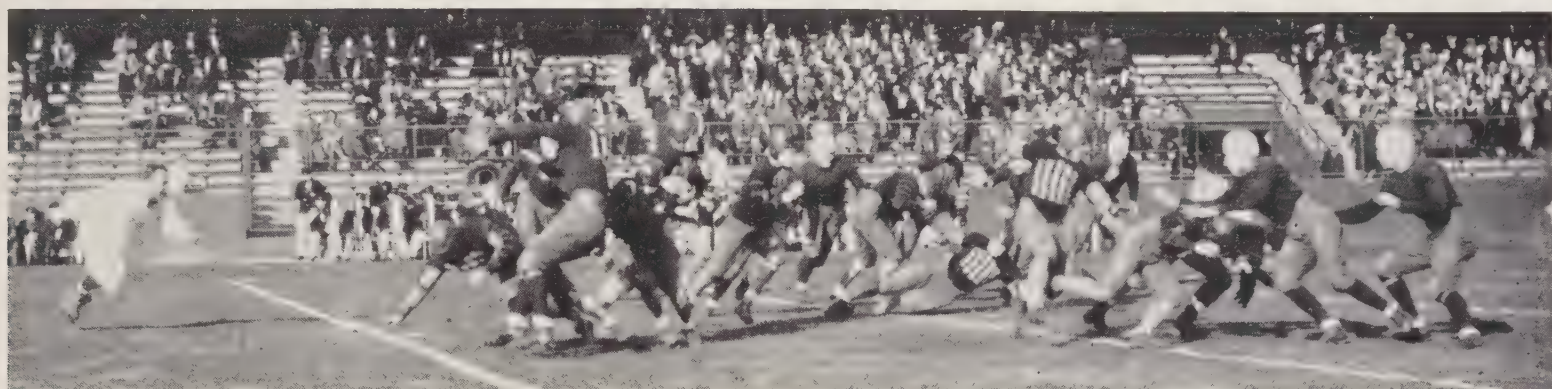

(Time to get it off.)

Reserve at Cleveland

The Migration Day game against Reserve provided the greatest thrills of the season. Backed to their own goalposts and seemingly played-out five minutes before the end of the game, Oberlin, with Sams passing beautifully, advanced seventy yards in three plays to gain a last minute triumph, 13—9. Few will forget Henry's diving catch of the winning pass in the corner of the end-zone.

(Oberlin defeats the over-ambitious Red Cats.)

Miami, Homecoming

Miami, expecting an easy victory, was fought to a near standstill in the last game of the season, and was glad to carry home a 12—0 win over an inspired Oberlin team.

JACK SERVICE
Captain, 1931

Track, 1930

CAPTAIN JIM BARNES

No complaint can be made of Coach Dan Kinsey's results with the track team during the 1930 season. It started strong and ended stronger. Carrying a long list of senior veterans, it also had the good fortune to reveal a wealth of potential material, especially in the young sophomore representation.

Captain Jim Barnes was easily high point man for the season, though Service and Hollands could usually be counted on to take their long runs and 440 respectively. Imhoff and Novotny were two of the mainstays of the field squad, though, as with the tracksters, the honors were well distributed among most of the team.

The season opened with Reserve at the Equestrium in Cleveland March 15. Barnes and Gaige led the team to a 49—16 triumph over the Red Cats and the Case entries were limited to only twelve points.

The following Saturday in the relays at Cleveland's Public Hall, Pew, Hollands, Parker, and Barnes came through with a second place, beating the Red Cat quartet to whom they had lost the week before.

Top: Milovsoroff, Bennett, Hubbard, Bridgman, York, Maxwell.
Third: Johnson, Heath, Parker, Phillips, Service, Coach Kinsey
Second: Metcalf, Cook, Hollands, Dunham, Gaige, Clough.
Bottom: Knepper, Savage, Chapman, Barnes, Novotny, Adams, Imhoff.

By the end of the preliminary outdoor meet with Ypsilanti, sport followers had been given ample indication of the high possibilities resting in the squad and these speculators were already ceding Oberlin first consideration in the Big Six chances. For, although Ypsi chalked up 80 points to our 51, this ratio was of much happier significance than it would at first appear. The Michigan school is rich in materials and training and has traditionally put out superior teams. Nevertheless, Barnes rated three firsts in the dashes and low hurdles.

The Wesleyan fray was the closest of the season. Barnes was suffering somewhat from a pulled muscle, but still earned high point position. Service took the mile and 880, and Hollands the 440, the latter barely nosing out in a thrilling finish. The field men fairly shone that day. Imhoff, Knepper, and Gaige taking first three places in high jump, and Moorehead, Novotny, and Phillips securing the discus, shot put, and pole vault, respectively.

Ohio Northern fell easiest and hardest, and when the smoke had cleared away, a 109—22 score stared them in the face. Oberlin took all 13 firsts, 7 seconds, and 7 thirds.

COACH DAN KINSEY

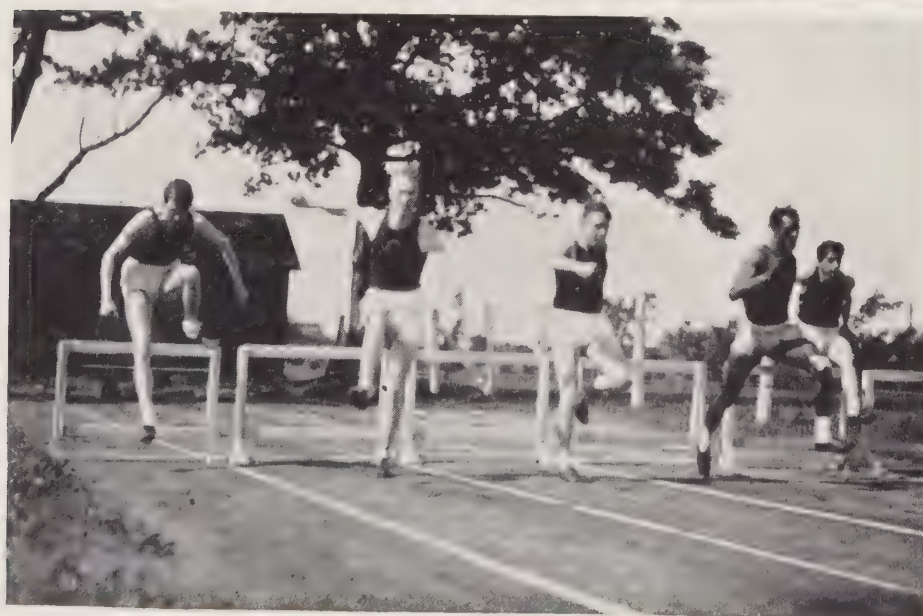

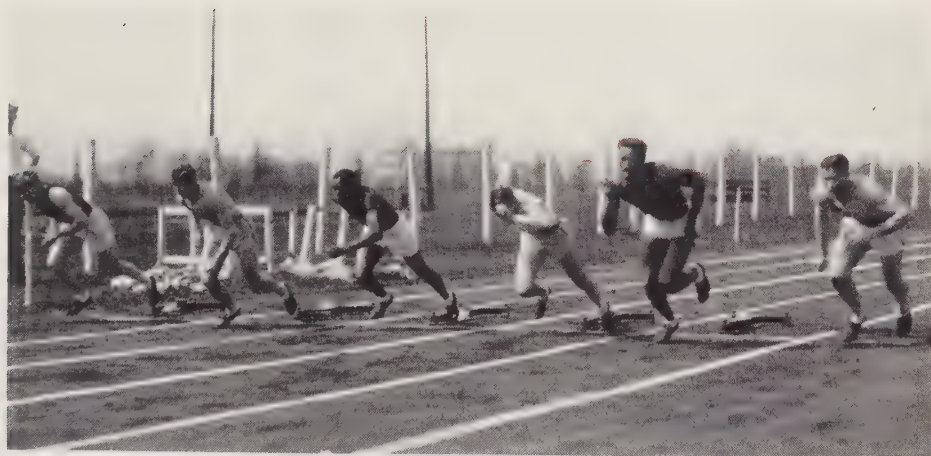

(Max Chapman throws the javelin.)

The second bump on the Crimson cinder pride was dealt by a fresh-well-balanced Miami team of "Big Ten" calibre. Service and Barnes were the only ones able to eke out a first apiece. Gaige did well in pulling two seconds. Service, Hollands, Chapman, and Imhoff also earned seconds in the half mile, 440, javelin and high jump respectively. The day ended with a rather ignominious score of $31\frac{2}{3}$ to $99\frac{1}{3}$.

Evidently the following week was characterized by strenuous training, for the Yeomen nearly reversed the Miami score by smothering Wooster $95\frac{1}{3}$ to $35\frac{2}{3}$. Somehow Wooster managed to take all three places in the pole vault, but the rest of her scoring was well scattered over the other events. Three sophomores, Cook, Dunham, and Gaige displayed strength by taking first in the mile, half mile, and 120 high hurdles respectively.

The final dual meet with Reserve, was literally run—, throw—, and jump-away. $100\frac{1}{3}$ to $30\frac{2}{3}$ hardly constituted a contest. Barnes took three firsts, Imhoff and Novotny each two, and one apiece for Service, Hollands, Dunham, Phillips, and Chapman.

This made three vertiable land-slides for the squad during the season.

(Coach Kinsey receives cups for the meet and the relay.)

Once more Oberlin won the Big Six, which was held at Wooster. The team ran up 56 points over eleven other schools, the nearest being a triple tie of $27\frac{1}{2}$ points. Jim Barnes finished his career with two firsts and a "short-nose" second, losing the century to Silverling of Ohio Northern. Also, though given a fair lead by Maxwell, Parker, and Hollands, Barnes clipped off his lap in the relay under 50 seconds.

(Barnes wins the 220).

Service merited the laurels by taking the one and two mile circuits. Gaige showed strong potential material for the '31 season by placing second in the low and third in the high hurdles. Hollands ran the 440 one tenth of a second slower than the record of 50.2 seconds. Novotony seconded in the shot-put. Johnson took third in both dashes. Imhoff, Knepper, Chapman, and Phillips also took places. No records were shattered, but Coach Kinsey and the team are to be congratulated on their performance.

(Service takes the two mile.)

BIG SIX CHAMPIONS

Dan Kinsey's best cross-country team was outrun only by Ohio Wesleyan, when sickness depleted the Yeomen ranks, and by Ypsilanti, rated by some as the strongest team in the country. The most overwhelming victory was over Wooster, with nine of the locals finishing ahead of the first opponent. The victory over Denison on a hilly course was nearly as sweeping.

Jack Service proved an excellent captain, his admirable spirit being evidenced in the Big Six here, won by Oberlin heads up, when he held back with the less confident men and sacrificed the opportunity of winning his last race. Captain-elect Cook led to the tape.

Next year's squad will be without Service and the Gladieux twins. With Irwin, Ashe, Smith, Meader, Staral, Dublo, and Cook, however, the hopes for winning the conference championship for the third straight year are bright.

Basketball

With only Herb Meinhold left over from last year's unified sextet, the prospects for the 1930-'31 season were uncertain. Moreover, Coach Butler was new at Oberlin, The Seniors and Juniors were potential material but would have been weak alone. Fortunately there appeared three Sophomores of first class ability. Smith and Bert Laird played throughout the season, but "Bunny" Spangler was obliged to drop in the middle of the season because of ineligibility.

Second: Biel, Barr, Butzberger, Whitcomb, Griffiths.
Bottom: Irvin, Coach Throner, Williams, Savage, Neubauer.

Coach Throner is still trying to figure out the psychology of the 1930 baseball season. There was never a more even break in a team's record. With each of the first five games there was a growing admiration for the Oberlin nine and after Reserve, the coach seemed to merit a pedestal.

Then came the Michigan trip. It seems that the explanation for the remainder of the season rests with the first game, that with the University of Michigan. The Yeomen led until the ninth inning, when Michigan tied them. In the tenth the Wolverines brought across the necessary run, ending a long and trying game, through most of which Butzberger had pitched excellent ball. There was something demoralizing in this defeat, which was not discounted any by the two following games with Ypsilanti and Michigan State. Not another game was won, though several were close. Moreover, the team seemed to lack that vital stamina on the last day. After losing a fairly close game to Wooster in the morning, the squad trekked to Wooster in the afternoon and presented them with a seven-inning 0-15 gift.

COACH GUY C. THRONER

FOREST ADAMS, Captain-elect

Six letter men just graduated, and the prospects are somewhat dim for next season. Biel and Beattie will be eligible to toe the mound, and Whitcomb and Giddings are aspirants to the same position. Adams, Ficken, Meinhold, Irwin, Brann, Griffiths, and Thomas will constitute the experienced material for the nucleus of a new team. Coach Throner's unquenchable optimism deems to be an asset for the 1931 season.

The Varsity "O" Club confesses another season, including a very enjoyable dance, and the unavoidable monthly meetings. Upon the social life of the campus was perpetrated a modification of the traditional "O" Club circus, at which guests were deluded in the gymnasium by a series of skits employing what exhibitable talent the club boasts.

The "O" Club's be-sweatered members were several times called on to act as campus guides or officials in situations requiring such service as they could offer. It is in the entertainment of visitors and general willingness to give organized attention to tag-ends not coming under the jurisdiction of the superior campus organizations that the "O" Club finds other than a purely social existence possible.

Intramurals

HERBERT CLOUGH

WILLARD PAYNE
SENIOR MANAGER

Intramurals, long popular at Oberlin, are fast supplanting intercollegiate competition as the major athletic interest of Oberlin men. Each year sees more men taking part in a greater variety of sports, with the emphasis placed upon enjoyable exercise rather than upon the necessity of winning.

The past year, the third under Doctor Nichols, saw Intramurals reach a new level, both in participation and in the number of sports presented. The plan of using student direction and officiation of games continued to prove successful under Payne and Clough, senior managers. Eighty-seven per cent of the men took part in intramural activity, and about twenty-five competed against Reserve in basketball and handball, against Wooster in handball, and against Case in fencing.

The new sports introduced were deck tennis, badminton, code ball, and an all-college foul-shooting contest. Touch football supplanted speedball as the fall inter-house sport and proved very popular. Inter-class bowling tournaments were held on the Men's Building alleys for the first time. Wrestling, fencing, boxing, handball, and especially swimming gained many new adherents; but the major sports, football, basketball, track, and baseball, continued to occupy the majority of men.

Performance during the inter-class soccer season again was the basis for selection of the varsity soccer team.

Two tarvialithic tennis courts were installed at the athletic field to meet the increasing number of participants.

The third annual Intramural Festival attracted and entertained over a thousand spectators, and thus definitely established itself as an annual event on the Oberlin calendar.

For two years before the past season, a start was being made toward intercollegiate competition in soccer. Last fall Oberlin beat Ohio State at Columbus 3-0, and played Illinois, champions of the Big Ten, to a 2-2 tie on the home field. More games would have been scheduled but for the lack of teams in near-by schools. If the sport is given varsity ranking soon, as is hoped, Oberlin may play eastern schools, where soccer is recognized more generally.

G. E. Wilbond of the College Market coached the kicksters from his experience in England. The squad of thirteen has members from Turkey, Japan, South Africa, Persia, and England.

ALICE ROOSA
President-elect, W.A.A.

Women's Athletics

DR. G. E. MOULTON
Director, Women's Physical Education

Oberlin's Physical Education department for women is nationally known to be of high standard. It has gained for itself this place of esteem chiefly through the foresight of Dr. Moulton. But aside from working within the department itself, she is making an effort toward having all women of the College and Conservatory participate in some activity.

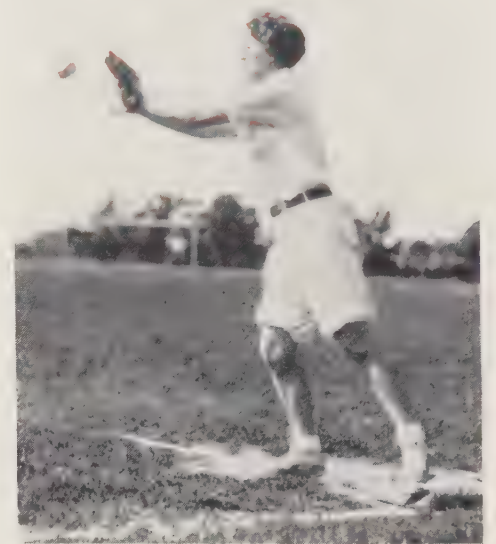

The W. A. A. has long had as its aim "a swimming pool for women." It has been mostly through the persistence and effort of Dr. Moulton that the women have seen this dream come into realization this year.

W. A. A.'s influence is felt mostly in the annual dance, the pageant, and the Yale-Princeton game. The Association is connected with the national Athletic Conference of American College Women and the National Amateur Athletic Federation and has thus far succeeded in living up to the standards of these live, national organizations.

JEAN BALL
President W. A. A.
Executive Board

Each spring at the last W. A. A. meeting sport managers for the following year are elected. These managers make up the W. A. A. Sport Board. Their duties are to plan an adequate program in their particular sport, to get as many girls playing as possible, and to write up a report of the activity at the end of the season.

The Oberlin W. A. A. offers a group of activities that compare favorably with those sports offered at other colleges. This year deck tennis, badminton, and ping pong were added to the already long list of athletic events.

The sports included in the program are:

The first meeting of the O.C. Club was held January 19, 1915. Later it was decided to hold meetings at the end of every month and to give "O.C." sweaters for a definite number of points instead of for participation in only one sport.

The business of the club has consisted chiefly in determining the point system, which it completely revised during the year 1929-30, and conducting the Frosh-Soph Scrap. This year it is taking charge of games in the Women's Gymnasium on Saturday afternoon from 1:30-4:30, sponsoring ping-pong, badminton, and deck tennis.

Class numerals are awarded to members of first teams in hockey, basketball, volleyball, and baseball. "O.C." sweaters are awarded to girls making five hundred points in team sports and the following individual sports.

After a two year vacation the weather man returned to his post this year. With his cooperation the women enjoyed an unusually successful hockey season.

The Juniors looked good at the beginning of the season, but were easily defeated by the Seniors. The Frosh were green and lost consistently during the first round. They rallied during the second round to defeat the Juniors and Sophs.

The All-Star game was played at 9 o'clock Thanksgiving morning. While the players and coaches were having breakfast in the Field House fifteen freshmen men were shoveling and sweeping snow off the hockey field, thus making the game possible. In spite of four degree weather, the attendance was large.

Annapolis annihilated West Point by a 4-1 score. At no time during the game did West Point threaten to outplay the Middies.

At last! In 1901 the report of the director of Physical Education for Women urged the building of a "Swimming Tank." In 1907 the women were so hopeful they voted $200 for plans for the new pool, which were made by Patton and Miller of Chicago. Twenty-three years later, May 14, 1930, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane, Jr., and their daughter, Barbara, '30, made a gift which brought the thirty-year wait to a close. Since then events have succeeded each other rapidly.

Ground was broken by Jean Ball, '31, president of the W.A.A., on October 28, 1930. President Wilkins at that time told of the valiant efforts the department had made with their meager equipment dating back to 1881 and 1895, and promised their increased service with added facilities. On January 15, 1931, the cornerstone was laid with Martha Woodmancy, '32, swimming manager, wielding the trowel.

(Jean Ball, Miss Moulton, Pres. Wilkins).

In addition to the large pool (35 x 75) the building contains a small pool (15 x 35) which will be kept warm to enable its use by those who do not get a good reaction from the colder water, and by beginners. It will also be used for a limited amount of hydrotherapy.

The basement will contain a recreation and campcraft room with a well-equipped kitchenette. The floor and walls of this room have been especially constructed to insure dryness. A piano and victrola and books can be kept here safely, and it will be open to the women at all times.

The home of Jean Frederic Oberlin at Waldbach in Ban-de-la-Roche stands today as it was during the French occupation of Alsace. The manse still houses descendants of the educator.

Men's Houses

If the Alderfer of today is steeped in a deluge of lore, that is easily explained. Back in the hallowed days of 1870 the house was built by R. H. Birge, book-keeper in the Goodrich Book Store. Former President Ballantine occupied the home during the period from 1881-1896. Two years later Mrs. Ella Pope purchased la maison and it became a rooming place. Came the twentieth century and Alderfer changed hands to Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Stewart who kept up the precedent set by their predecessors.

It is a fact of no mean repute that Jack Wirkler lived here in 1903.

In 1913 Mr. Jacob Alderfer purchased the house. Robert Stephan, radio editor of the Plain Dealer and the present owner, named it Alderfer House in honor of Alderfer who died in the War. The present Manor occupied Alderfer twice, and after the second exodus Alderfer was remodelled. At present it accommodates twelve students. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bohrer are the guardians.

The stronghold of the 1933 conquestidors is located halfway between the softening influence of Keep Cottage and the Puritanical rigor of old First. However, the sponsors of the Byzantine architecture lay claim to no "golden men."

Although the Alhambra is the most recent addition to the group of men's residences, the members assert that it is the oldest dormitory on the campus. Instituted by the discovery that the joices were hewn from logs and that the plaster contained hair and leaves as a binder, an investigation proved the house to be over eighty years of age.

This sagging domicile originally served as a dormitory. Later it was remodeled as a double house for private families. Then, in September, 1930, a stolid band of Sophomores took it over. As the name implies, the spirit of Spain sways the torreadors who gather often in the arena to pursue the traditional under-graduate pass-time, that of old Spain.

Aspiring to Epicurean interests and complete celibacy, fourteen juniors and companions took the Abbey for a residence this fall. God rest the hallowed memory of that anchorites' cell which has now become a veritable Roman villa. Seventeen other congenials were added when they took sworn oaths of bachelorhood.

This brings the name to attention and with one accord all agreed upon "Bachelor Hall"—and the schism with coeducation was complete. A sign depicting friendship and learning with appropriate symbols was suspended from a smoking pipe before the door, advertising the inventors to a disappointed world.

Learning, though present, was not offensively so. Impromptu lectures on companionate marriage, psychology, socialism, and so forth, were well attended. The present matron is Mrs. Erwin Worchester.

Barr House was opened in September, 1929, as a College-owned residence, and thirteen Oberlinites took possession. The house was named after Mrs. Ruth W. Barr, the matron. On Homecoming Day in the fall of 1929 a sign was erected and a lantern with furtive legends attached for illumination.

Some Herculean effort of the College carpenter joined single beds in pairs, one on top of the other. Groucho Marx, censor des lits, would call these "double-deckers." The Barrites have other names.

week. Mrs. J. P. Klotz, the first matron, was followed by Mrs. King.

Delta was characterized two years ago as "suffering from growing-pains," and now, though not beyond adolescence in comparative age, so many members of the house were on the football squad last fall that it was unable to

If "Lights about Town" is an indication of the undercover activities of the Grecian demi-gods,

Delta divides its time between Playhouse Square in Cleveland and coeducational bridge on North Professor, where the conversation runs from cabbages and kings to coaches and Carnera, according to the Main Street disciple of Walter Winchell.

This year, for the first time, Delta has no matron.

The Morgue had existed two years anonymously when Emerson Gavlin contrived an ensignia of gold and dull black. The College refused to publish the name in the Fusser's Guide, and the neighbors failed to take the nameplate cum grano salis. A death in the neighborhood brought the ill-omened sign down.

The name "Morgue" has transcended six tuition payments, and the new escutcheon, devised also by the demon Gavlin, with its coffin and tombstone surmounted by a death's head, has led a life of censure, for the neighbors protest that it is too gruesome a device to expose in public. The name "Morgue" is still omitted from the Fusser's Guide, the house being listed under the name of Miss L. R. Cummings, who is matron and informer.

When the Men's Building opened its doors, the present Commons was known as the "Banquet Room." It was the salle supreme, being used only on such occasions as stags and social events. In 1916 the dining hall was turned over to the Student Army Training Corps, and four hundred Sergeant Quirts ate there. Long wooden tables and narrow benches were used by the military neophytes for their frugal fare. The hall was used for studying and possibly wood-carving between meals.

Before the Oberlin unit was dismissed, the matter of continuing the dining hall was voted down in a mass meeting. By petition, however, the Commons was opened the next year to forty diners. A convenient feature in those days

The dining hall re-opened the next year under Herr Bishoff, for 200 Freshmen and upperclassmen. Davenport and tables and other conveniences for wasting time were added. A feature, which has been renewed this year, was Ladies Night. It is said that this was the only time when the Frosh dressed respectfully.

The name "Commons" was dropped in the fall of 1929, and the dining room has been used exclusively by Freshmen since. Mrs. E. T. Brandon is manager and the civilizing influence.

Freshman Dining Hall

Nineteen-nineteen is the earliest date at which Oberlin masculinity dared desert the chatter of women's boarding halls for its true right; freedom to discuss Corn Flakes, bananas and prunes with appropriate indelicacy. That permission was granted to men to govern their own room and board without feminine surveillance was a matter of no little wonder at the time.

Two years of dubious relations with neighbors and the constable at Alderfer sent the boys to the grain fields and barnyards of 420 East College for a year, the Southwestern providing a special car stop. Three months at Alderfer in 1924 terminated with an impending law suit, and the Knights of Friendship reverted to the more sympathetic surroundings of the suburbs. For five years the house by the golf course was often mistaken for the club house. Those were the days of the Manor Fords, 1, 2, 3, and 4, which made the trip to Peters each morning in tandem. Although the heritage of open spaces was not to be deprecated by the Manor men, the hike from East Kipton was too devastating after the "no car" rule arrived in 1926. Bicycles began to accumulate at the country club and the cry for a central location became more general and official.

This is the second year in the Professor Street house. Sam Coleman, two hundred and fifty pounds of chocolate, is completing his tenth year as cook, and is probably the only college cook in the country with a master's degree. This is said seriously although Sam is not noted for the veracity of his statements. The most recent acquisitions are Professor Robert "Ma" Duncan and Mickokie, the police pup.

CARLTON BUCHER

A vigorous movement for centralization of men's dormitory life was partly culminated when the Men's Building was opened in the fall of 1910. President King officiated at the ceremonial rites on February fifth of the following year.

As first contemplated, the Men's Building provided rooming suites only on the third floor. The second floor was used by the three literary societies, Phi Delta, Phi Kappa Pi and Alpha Zeta, which were flourishing at that time. The "O" Club and the Men's Glee Club also had rendezvous on this floor, adding variety to the classical languor. The West Rooms were in demand for dinner parties, being the only part of the building in which women were permitted.

The billiard and bowling rooms in the basement enjoyed unprecedented popularity until recently, when the perversions at Pete's took the boys away from the Men's Building.

When the War came the building was used as barracks for the Student Army Training Corps, which drew students from all parts of the country. "Herr" Bischoff, who had guided the destinies of the M. B. from the time of its inception, was the only civilian living there during this period.

After the War, the men's literary societies were unable to revive completely, and their rooms were

Somewhat amazed by the enthusiastic reception given him, he lost his voice and sat by the window morosely. The tale is that "Prince" was captured by a group of sophomore men and held for ransom two decades ago. After some twenty years of plotting, he escaped from an attic window during the "Tie-up" last fall. Today the "Prince" rests supinely on the second floor.

Peabody House, away from student traffic on North Pleasant Street, is a gray stucco house made distinctive by two colonial pillars at the front entrance and a large side porch. The garden in the rear contains a small pool of lilies, rose bushes, fruit trees, and a summer house.

The dwelling, built in 1916, was occupied by younger members of the faculty. Later, under the supervision of the owner and matron, Mrs. Luetta Peabody Magruder, it became a student residence. During "Peabody Week," the nine upper-classmen initiate two freshmen.

"Peabody Evening" the last of May consists of a coeducational banquet at the "Inn" followed by bridge and dancing. The house colors are gold and black, and the emblem is a black shield with two colonial pillars.

Peake Inn's history began during the World War. The two seniors who first forced their way into the block-house managed to hold out alone for an entire year. They were succeeded by a materially increased garrison, and the citadel has been filled to capacity ever since. A few years later the body was transformed into a communistic body whose members shared a study room, a social room, a dormitory, and neckties.

Revolution, the keynote of the recent history of Peake Inn, has resulted in the expulsion of all lower classmen from the fort and the quartering of the garrison in dual or solitary confinement. No longer can the Peakinese send abused freshmen on foraging expeditions to the settlement. As the disruption and disquietude of an age of transition are subsiding, an atmosphere of peace and composure is settling over the structure.

Pfaff House has not long harbored under its protecting eaves young men in ravenous pursuit of learning. In February of 1926, when West Lodge ended its colorful career as a men's residence, four underclassmen migrated to Pfaff's. This nucleus was augmented the following year, and for several semesters it is claimed that underclass warfare here was rife.

The inhabitants are Juniors with one exception. They claim that real-estate value in this section has increased tremendously since the advent of men students. There is no doubt that this is due to the extensive wardrobes of the Pfaff men who have made good use of their credit with the house owner at his clothing store. Mrs. H. A. Pfaff, as matron, sees that the men wear college-cut clothes and Cheyney cravats.

For many years the house now known as Pileout was the home of a local physician and for six years after 1923 of Reverend Van der Pyle. In 1929, Mrs. L. J. Morris moved down West College Street, bringing with her the townies of the old Ritz-Carlton, who changed the sign to read, "Carlton Club."

In the fall of 1929, the house was re-christened "Pileout". The original occupants under the reorganization had been together since the freshman year. They were replaced this fall by a group of Juniors, and the name was retained to the disparagement of Pyle Inn next door, where the travesty even now is not appreciated.

In the spring of 1926 a group of Freshmen eagerly seized upon the idea that in "unity there is strength, fellowship, and proximity." Accordingly, they met in conclave, drew up the membership roll, and formed the organization. After securing a domicile for the following fall, the members left for the summer vacation.

Came the fall of '26 and with it the establishing of a new men's house in Oberlin. The house was confronted with the task of securing a name for itself; but this was soon solved when some adventure-loving rogue gained possession of a lantern by fair means or foul, and the lantern color was red. So by some piece of fortunate fate, a name came to the house with no difficulty involved.

The earlier groups have gone from Oberlin but the intramural athletic cup they have won for the last two years remains at the house. Mrs. N. Smith is matron.

In 1911, Richard's opened as a women's dormitory. Three years later it became a men's house, instituting a series of weird traditions including the cookie jar replenished by Mrs. Richards, and nocturnal tea seances. The African trophy room, with its tom-toms, ostrich eggs, ibex heads, and an occasional student, is reminiscent of the Richard's years as African missionaries. Richard's is without doubt the only college rooming house in the country serving an African menu annually: Muro in Maroxa, Mihambu, Ghandi, some say, and other clandestine dishes.

Although Root is the newest house on the Campus, it has already engendered the sort of traditions generally attributed isolated freshman houses.

The house was the residence of Professor Azariah Root, "Dean of American Librarians," and for forty years librarian of the College. During his term the number of volumes in the library increased from 10,000 to 100,000. So keen was his memory that he was able to locate a book without use of the card index until the number reached 75,000. Thereafter he was perturbed because he occasionally had to refer to the files.

Root houses eleven Freshmen and Melville "Cot" Kirakofe, junior member of the physical education staff, known on North Professor as "Ma." The matron is Mrs. G. Hintz.

The White House, possible inspiration for Jane Adams' recent masterpiece, is inhabited by a group of individuals whose only claim to whiteness lies in their unparalleled virtue. The personnel consists in a woeful euthenic heterogeny—hybrids all, but balm to the dean's aching heart.

This heterogeny boasts but a single ideal, which is pursued indefatigably — namely, "Cut-exemption." Admission of this fact is one of the most fundamental and constructive innovations in Oberlin's masculine hypocrisy.

The general atmosphere of perversion is intensified by such harmless ribaldry as: drop the handkerchief, button—button, here come the police, petty larceny, murder et cetera. The ground floor is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Loveland. Mr. Loveland characterizes the present group as "the fourth batch" under the Whitehouse insignia.

In 1926 a small group of Trojans landed on the shores of the raging Plum sounding the Chinese hog call: tss-Lo-o—rrrr Lo-o-rrrrrrrr. They saw the sedentary advantages offered by the house at 148 South Professor. The hardies moved in amid good cheer and feasting; but Eris was hovering near and dissension soon broke out.

The controversy was all over a name. For since the Plum had grown out of all proportion, and was flowing over the bridge instead of under it, the new group hit on the name of Yacht Club.

But the matron had no sympathy with the wild ways of sea-faring men and desired to name the place Aw-Go-Wan. A right hearty battle ensued, but neither side could gain the victory. So the would-be tars mutinied, and the ship was deserted until the following fall, when the house changed hands. The new owners were quite in sympathy with things naughty-cal, and the old name of Yacht Club was revived. Incidentally, the home is owned by a lake captain. Mrs. G. H. Bower is the stewardess on the present cruise.

Prior to 1863 a land baron—Plum by name—built Allencroft and later sold to Dr. Allen, a physician from Kinsman, Ohio. The present College Treasurer, Mr. Thurston, was a boarder in the Allen family during his college days.

In 1900 the house was rented by two New York women who sought the touch of college life in boarding twelve girls. In 1913 the College took it over and placed

Mrs. Seaman in charge, with boys from the Academy, now Johnson House, living there.

Allencroft was remodelled for a dormitory in 1914 and a dining-hall was added. Three years later, College women were ejected and complete celibacy from text books has been maintained ever since. Mrs. Adda F. Breed, as matron, now operates the incubator, and the brood eats at Barrows.

Nineteen years ago some twelve co-eds and a vacuum cleaner identified themselves with the Arnold household, and though two decades have passed, the cleaner is still status quo. In the early years of the house history, Mrs. Arnold heaped high the festive boards for her girls, but as a result of the overwhelming popularity of her cuisine the practice was, paradoxically enough, discontinued. Beano, that peer of mastiffs, was acquired to finish off the odds and ends. He, in turn, acquired the habit of protesting vociferously against co-education. When Mrs. Arnold's bread-line was discontinued, the girls took up jogging to Tank and have developed a superlative endurance. The venerable Arnolds are hosts at the annual Turkey dinner and the week-end at the lake in the Spring.

Baldwin was opened as a women's residence in the spring of 1887 and named in honor of Mr. E. I. Baldwin of Cleveland. An interesting feature of the house life is that Colonial customs are interwoven into the modern college life. The Virginia Reel, Martha Washington's debut at the annual tea, and the Queen of May are highlights in Baldwin's social calendar.

The tradition of most vital interest at Baldwin concerns "Priscilla." She comes into prominence on Thanksgiving morning staring down from the mantelpiece—a large portrait such as formerly graced the walls of bar-rooms. The damsel passes between the waiters and the women in accordance with unwritten but inviolate rules. Priscilla must be displayed in the dining-hall by the side which possesses her, whereupon the contest is renewed. The opposition must touch the portrait before the possessors are able to abscond with Priscilla.

The feud flourishes so periodically and in such a campus-wide manner that Baldwinites are continually reminded of Priscilla's capacity of patron saint.

Barrows is popularly considered the most beautiful building in Oberlin. President Barrows, who built the house in 1902, attained southern warmth with the classic pillars and a spacious yard planted with evergreens and lilac bushes. The annual lilac party is an echo of the festive but staid occasions of that earlier decade when Thanksgiving dinner in the Barrows home was a significant occasion on the South Side. Whiting Williams, assistant to President King and now a trustee of the College, and the Byrnes family occupied the house successively.

The Cranford house-boat effect is graced with Colonial simplicity. Although no Washingtons or Lafayettes have sipped choice Japan tea here, her history has been a notable one. One, Peter Pinder Pease, was the first owner in the days when agricultural pursuits were predominant on old East College. The farm estate was transferred to the possession of Robert Millikan's grandfather, whose efforts at landscaping are still manifested in the form of a large elm tree at the side of the house.

To make the tale involved this renowned grandfather's brother fell into the marriage pit when he was wedded to a Miss Plum, for whom the miscreant creek was named. Romance has been the very essence of the Cranford spirit since then. The house has harbored such notables as the Johnsons, and the Barrows family. Reconstruction of the house under the regime of Mrs. Bacon was featured by a third story, several additional porches, and that which is dear to the hearts of men, a host of co-eds. The house was named Cranford after Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford."

An augmented dining room has featured the entrance of each new college class and Mrs. Smith's culinary reputation has extended far beyond the banks of the Plum. The arbor, the apple trees in snowy bloom, the romantic benches by the creek and—moonlight or shrouded shades of night—that's Cranford. Mrs. Cairns was matron of the house from 1912 until she fell into the above mentioned pit with Prof. Cairns last spring. Mrs. Grace N. Herren is the new matron.

Reconstruction days following the Civil War saw Churchill's appearance on the verdant green. Miss Rawson, a disciple of the Perfectionist faith, purchased the building for use as a meeting house for her followers a la New England. Zealous students who became converts to the religion resided here in true devotion. However, the college officials under President Finney's administration looked upon this sect with an eye of fury. The house changed hands to the Packards and then to the Browns, finally to come into the possession of the college in 1913.

It was immediately remodelled and converted into a women's dormitory, being an annex to Talcott. The name Churchill was given the house in honor of that gifted gentleman and scholar, Professor Henry Churchill, who served Oberlin the remarkable term of 48 years. Mrs. Mary J. Fleming is the present marton.

The land on which Ellis Cottage stands was part of the original land grant to Oberlin in 1833. With a large section of the surrounding land it was leased to W. W. Wright in 1851 and later purchased by him. In the early '60's Wright sold this plot to John M. Ellis, an Oberlin graduate and professor of Greek and Moral Philosophy.

Professor Ellis was about to be married and built the house for his bride. Forest Street was opened at this time for the building of the house. The Ellises lived there until 1894, when the professor died. In 1907 the College acquired the house but did not at first convert it into a college dormitory. It was rented to Mrs. Farmer who ran it as a student residence called "Lafalot". In 1914 it became a conservatory house. Mrs. M. M. Haddock is matron of the budding prima donnas.

Seriously, though, Dascomb has maintained the best of the tradi-

The history and tradition of Fairchild are an interesting combination. Once the home of President Fairchild, it is now the home of "Fairchildren", who are thrice blest because, in addition to the tales told about the old place, the house is near the center of activity and the Hi-O-Hi office. While the residence was the home of Fairchild, the Civil War President of Oberlin, it was a station of the Underground Railway. Often the old attic sheltered many runaway slaves.

The Norway spruces which enhance the wide front lawn owe their existence to none other than Matthew Arnold, whose ardent pleas for their survival caused the owner to preserve them. An interesting touch is added by the fact that President Fairchild, because he had no lackey, shined Arnold's boots for him while the latter was visiting the house. The matron is Mrs. L. A. Gulde was cradled in an atmosphere of savory theology, for it was Hiram Mead, Professor of Sacred Rhetoric and Pastoral Oral Theology, who built the house for his residence in 1869. He sold it to James K. Newton, Professor of German and French.

A career of dormitory life was launched in 1890 when Mrs. E. I. Morrison purchased the house and presided as matron. Chicago's fire had nothing on Gulde's historic blaze in 1893. Charles Winifred Savage made his bid to fame when he ran four blocks and ninety yards to rescue his bride-to-be, who sent out the alarm vociferously.

The house passed through the hands of the Sterretts, Popes, and Klinefelters and finally to Mrs. Gulde, its present owner, in 1920.

Closely woven into Gulde's history is the remembrance of prominent men who stand preeminent in Gulde's dining-hall fame: Wayne B. Wheeler, George Jones, and Robert Millikan. Moreover, Dean Nash of the Conservatory and Mrs. Savage graced the Gulde interior.

The French House is the most conspicuous example of the Oberlin cosmopolitanism. It ushered in the current scholastic season by moving into the former Lauderdale Hall from across the street. Madame Lahaurene-Johnston, directrice, has as her assistant this year Mademoiselle Marie-Rose Pont-Martin. Despite its comparative newness, the house has already engendered traditions. The September baptême (pronounced "water") is the ceremony of immersions and naming of the rooms. The flower of kings and of amorous swains in France, the lily-of-the valley, has been adopted as a house symbol, and is used for decoration at the House Tea in May.

The frog in the pictures is the very soul of the Maison. Last year he occupied the "frog pond", and was a conspicuous part of the decoration for the house dance in 1930. While the berets are not peculiar to the girls who live in the house, they have a special significance for the matron who hails from the Basque country. This solves the mystery of the "bray" section at the football games.

Lest we forget that enervating game of Ping Pong (la petite chose)—many a fervid battle is waged over the indoor net. There is a spirit of congeniality around the dining table, where the old hands never have trouble getting enough quelque chose manger.

French House

In 1909 the grey house on West College Street was bought by Mrs. Gripmore. It was made into a girl's dormitory by the addition of the top floor and enlarging it at the back. In time Mrs. Gripmore released her hold, and the house passed into the hands of the Tuckers. They rented the house to Miss Sammons, who managed it for three years. In turn Mrs. Haggerty took charge for a number of years. Her long matronship lasted until 1924, at which time "Mother" Dudley, as she is affectionately known by her many girls, obtained the house from the Tuckers.

Under "Mother" Dudley, life at Grey Gables has been made congenial for over thirty girls for six years. The dining-hall, with its seventy to ninety members, has been co-educational. The Gables has built itself a reputation for diversified social activity—Chinese suppers, "recs", sleigh-ride parties, which are the nearest approach to winter sports the Russia Township Steppes offers, and particularly the dance, long known as the biggest of its kind on the campus and this year augmented with a banquet at the Inn. None of these have been overlooked this season.

Back in the "mauve decade" Professor Dascomb built a house south of the site of Barrows. Mr. A. H. Johnson purchased the house soon after, and with the aid of lever, fulcrum, and wheel, the Victorian monstrosity was moved to the rise across the street. In 1912 The College bought the home for a dormitory of the old Academy. For three years it served in this capacity. Within its walls, Sinclair Lewis, no doubt, acquired a conviction or two about provincialism from the Oberlin townspeople while he prepped at the Academy. Since 1915 Johnson has been occupied by conservatory women. The matron is Mrs. Annie F. Crafts.

Lord Cottage, named in memory of the chief donor to its construction fund, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell Lord, was built in 1892. It was the home of missionaries' children and for years was the least expensive dormitory on the campus, paying its matron, Mrs. Gray, now of the Kindergarten Training School, $2.40 a week, and later $6.00. When Lord was reconstructed after a fire in 1900, it attained the present summer hotel appearance, which has not gone the way of cheap board.

Two brass plates, one in memory of Jeremiah Butler in the reading room bearing that name, are the chief graces of Lord's open spaces for Sunday night callers. The furnishings for the down-stairs rooms were donated with the plates. Tradition dictates that upper-classmen have first choice on the davenport in the "court", if it is not occupied by the bell girls. Mrs. Helen E. Duff is the present matron.

Keep Cottage celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of its founding this past January, although with no ostentatious display of pomp. Albeit that the building is practically two decades old, it is, however, one of the newest of the College dormitories, being built in 1913. It was the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Keep Clark in honor of her parents, Reverend and Mrs. John Keep, who made the construction possible.

Chief among the traditions of Keep was the annual fire in the basement. There has been none this year; the rubbish chute has been boarded up. When zephyrs blow in April, it is a sign that the Daffodil Tea is at hand. Prior to the Christmas recess come the candle light service and winter formal, with King Mistletoe reigning supreme.

There are other traditions, the foremost of which are the weekend party at Lake Erie in late May and the flag breakfast in early June, which was first held in 1922 when the flag and flag pole were dedicated. In this age of pole sitters, this flag affair is of special significance, although no one in Keep has broken any records. More than a thousand girls have lived at Keep, and the start toward the second "mille" is strong. The present matron is Mrs. Fanny O. Kell.

Noble characterizes itself as a beehive with many traditions, chief among which is eating next door at Cranford. Normally enough, there are drones hovering about for honey under the surveillance of Queen Bee Hopkins. Paradoxically, the bees despise the appearance of labor but take to the flower garden in the rear often during the verdant months. They gather honey at night only, and the early bee gets the arbor.

The house was the Jenney home until 1910, when it became "Windermere," a dormitory. It has been "Noble" for eleven years, named by Mrs. Pope, ex-matron of Cranford, for her parents.

The rule of the hive is cooperation, a particularly noble trait during droning time, when the accumulated sweets go to the guests of the evening. Other houses please copy.

As an organization, the N. D. G. Club is still in its infancy. Last year saw its first attempts at real action, and this year it has finally gained progress. The club serves as a social unit for the girls who do not live in dormitories, and is similiar to the house unit.

For several years, attempts have been made to start such a club, but it has only been in the last two years that one has existed. A club room in the Women's

Building was furnished with the help of the College for studying and reading for the girls who live away from the campus to use between classes.

Social organizing done by the club has been commendably successful for the Perioecae. A masqued dance, a bridge party, a formal dance, several teas, hikes, and steak roasts, were included in the year's program.

The Lincoln-like statue on the incline is the dominating personality of the Shurtleff grounds. Through the years traditions have clustered around this figure guarding the path, and the Civil War General could tell some interesting tales were he to come to life.

It is a well-known fact that Shurtleff was a precursor of the Davy Tree School. In the Spring two of the traditional events are the May Day Party, a homecoming for all former Shurtleff girls, and the Garden Party, which are particularly effective as a result of the zoological setting. The General was a dendrologist who tried to plant on his grounds as many trees and shrubs of Ohio as possible during his lifetime. The matron at the present time is Miss E. F. Hull.

Wright Manor takes its name from Dr. George N. Wright, author of geological books and articles, who lived in the house two decades ago. Curious stones are still beside the steps where the professor placed them. For a time the building was a faculty house. Then Mrs. Paddock managed it as a dormitory for three years, and for the past eight, Rev. William Smith has been the owner, with Mrs. Smith as matron.

Stocker's came into the fold of campus residences in 1911 with Mrs. Hope as matron. Men and women boarded there until Mrs. Shepard became matron and opened the house exclusively as a women's dormitory. In 1924 the Stockers purchased the house and their heritage remains, as yet, intact.

Pyle Inn completes twenty years of service to Oberlin femininity. Originally, Mrs. L. H. Pyle operated the Carpenter Apartments, then known as a "boarding house." The dormitory was quarantined for scarlet fever, and for all the serenades and the food administered by the rope and basket method, one house and one yard were confining for twenty-one girls. "We are piled in here," said one.

Talcott was opened as a women's residence in 1887, replacing Ladies' Hall, which had been destroyed by fire the previous year. The building committee unwittingly gave impetus to Oberlin's architectural heterogeneity, but provided wide corridors and ample hall space. No two rooms are of the same size and shape. Among the historical relics which were rescued from the burning Ladies'

Hall and installed in Talcott are the memorial windows to Father and Mother Shipherd and a set of dessert forks which are still in use. The memorial windows are an integral part of the famed Rose Parlor.

For many years the old Talcott poplar on the corner was the college bill-board, until tack space was hard to find, and it died at the age of fifty with an unique variety of plant rust. The couples who billed and scooted about it inspired the song, "Under the Talcott Tree." In 1920 Professor A. A. Wright, grandson of the planter of the original tree, set out a new one, which blew down a year ago. An account of Professor Jelliffe's vertical rise to balcony fame would be chief among the tales of "Old Talcott," were authentic details available.

Talcott has been responsible for a large number of Oberlin marriages, but since co-eds have been fronting at the dining boards alone, much of the after-glow has been eliminated at the match factory. But the Rose Parlor and bats in the turrets are still part of the Talcott saga. Mrs. G. A. Lawrence, the second matron in the hall's history, has served since 1908.

The history of the large red house harks back to the eighteenth century. It reverts to Norway, to the home of a Norwegian nobleman who was a member of the Court of Gustavus Adolphus IV and Prime Minister of the realm, and to his son, Neils Otto Tank, a young man of high scholarship and great promise. However, when young Tank turned from the Established Church to adopt the tenets of the Moravians, he was disinherited by his father. After teaching among the Moravians, he was stationed in Dutch Guiana, where his wife, chosen for him by lots and prayer, died after three years. In 1849, after his return to Europe, he married a Dutch woman of high birth, Caroline von der Muelen, with whom he migrated to America, settling in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

After the death of her husband and daughter, Mrs. Tank devoted herself to philanthropy and was especially interested in missions.

Her last gift was to the Oberlin Missionary Home Association, for the founding of a home for the children of foreign missionaries. This home, built in 1897, was named for her. In 1922, its usefulness was outgrown, like the Women's Gym, and it was turned over to the college for use as a dormitory.

One of the most popular traditions, established by the missionary children under Professor Lehmann, carried on by the girls, and since adopted by all college houses, is the singing of Christmas carols early the last Sunday morning before Christmas when slumber is at a minimum. A formal reception for the faculty and the last house dance in May are among the special customs. Of particular interest in the house is the clock on the mantel, which has stood there for almost a quarter of a century, a valuable engraving, and several pieces of furniture, which were bequeathed by Mrs. Tank.

In spite of the connotation of the name, the Vatican is no haunt of Cistercian Nuns; neither is it the symbol for the Pope's encyclical. Twenty-two years ago a tri-decem of demoiselles fell upon the idea of naming their new house after the Pope's sisters whose home it was. By logical induction the name "Vatican" follows.

On the other hand the Vatican has gone modern. They are a race of walkers, a result of the distance from the "Arb". The other modern diversion is indicated by Mrs. Malloy's anticipation of the miniature golf craze with the sort of tennis court built on a 50-foot lot. Furthermore, the tennis court is still in active operation, while the golf courses go the way of all decay. As this Vatican Bull is brought to a close, receive the Cistertians' benediction.

Since the founding of Oberlin College, the private women's houses have been as vital a part of the Oberlin myth as Chapel and Plum Creek. And now it has been deemed inconsistent with the Oberlin spirit of democracy for women to live in groups made up by other methods than those prescribed by the Dean's Office. We eulogize Grey Gables, Pyle Inn, Cranford, Noble, and the Vatican, regretting that next fall they can be pointed out to the Freshmen only as the defunct strongholds of Liberty, Equality, and Sorority. Equality alone remains.

W. FREDERICK BOHN
Assistant to the President

The Future of Oberlin

This book has no formal dedication. Dr. W. Frederick Bohn, whose picture appears on the preceding page, is the Assistant to the President and administers the business matters of the College. In this capacity Dr. Bohn is in close contact with the eight million dollar building program partially described on these pages.

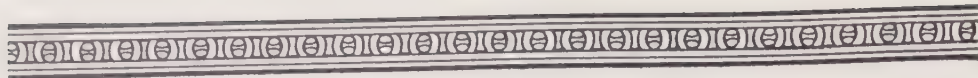

Over a period of years alumni of Oberlin have subscribed faithfully to the Living Endowment Union. With this indication of support in mind, Mr. John G. Olmstead, secretary of the Alumni Association, traveled through the South and West to promote interest in the eight million dollar building program of the College. He spoke to alumni chapters in St. Louis, Omaha, Denver, Spokane, Los Angeles, Knoxville, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and seventeen intermediate cities.

The work of the Association is carried on as vigorously in Oberlin as elsewhere. Alumni are brought to the campus for Commencement and the fall and mid-winter homecomings. The Alumni Magazine, edited by Mr. Olmstead, carried features this year particularly indicative of the present Oberlin. Dr. Wager's series, "To Whom It May Concern," and a page by students, "The Undergraduate, What He is Thinking About," were well received.

As president of the American Alumni Association, John Olmstead attended six district meetings in the West and presided at the national convention at Atlanta in April. It is his hope that a transfer of general interest in Oberlin among the alumni to active support of the building program will facilitate the completion of the proposed and necessary units.

OBERLIN COLLEGE

A COLLEGE that has been made by men, not one or two outstanding figures alone, but generations of the finest type of loyal, scholarly, and sincere workers.

FOR THIS REASON, Oberlin can offer something finer than buildings—although she is erecting new buildings—something more thorough-going than courses of study—although she has a curriculum of which she may justly be proud.

THE GREATEST THING Oberlin has to offer is what she has become through a century of endeavor of fine men and women; and what she hopes to become in future years through the spirit of the faculty and students now within her walls.

Mr. Kutscher, Secretary and Principal of the Oberlin School of Commerce, has gained a reputation as one of the leading teachers of business subjects in the country. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, taught commercial classes in Schenley High School in Pittsburgh seven years, was a leading teacher in the Spencerian School at Cleveland for four years before coming to Oberlin four years ago.

He is one of the leading officials of the National Association of Commercial Teachers and also the Ohio Business Schools Association.

School of Commerce would fit college graduates for the better class of business and office positions.

Our Employment Department is glad to co-operate with the Bureau of Appointments in placing graduates of Oberlin College in desirable positions.

THE Oberlin School of Commerce is one of the few schools of business training in the entire country having the college entrance requirement. Admitting only high school graduates and only at the beginning of terms, it is able to do a fine grade of work and has gained a reputation throughout the country. It is one of the seven schools of business training in Ohio recognized by the State School Department of Ohio as a Junior College.

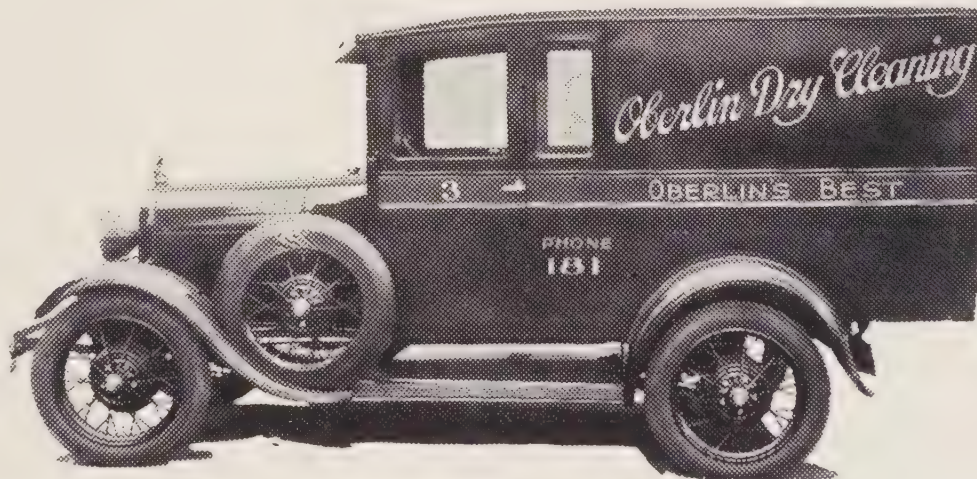

Strong Demand for College Graduates with Business Training

Success comes much more quickly to those who have the tools of business—who can step into business and secretarial positions through shorthand, typewriting and accounting.

Few college graduates have such training, and as a result, there is a great demand for their services. One year in the Oberlin

The Sophronia Brooks Hall Auditorium may be finished for the Oberlin Centennial in 1933. It will stand on North Main Street at the end of Tappan Walk, facing the Memorial Arch. The building will have a large organ, facilities for dramatics, and possibly a broadcasting studio. It will be large enough to meet Oberlin's need for an adequate audience hall.

"On The Corner"

The Physics Building is one of the first on the list of proposed buildings. Located on Professor Street north of the Chemistry Building, it will form, together with Severance, the east side of a quadrangle of science buildings. This quadrangle may extend ultimately to Woodland Avenue.

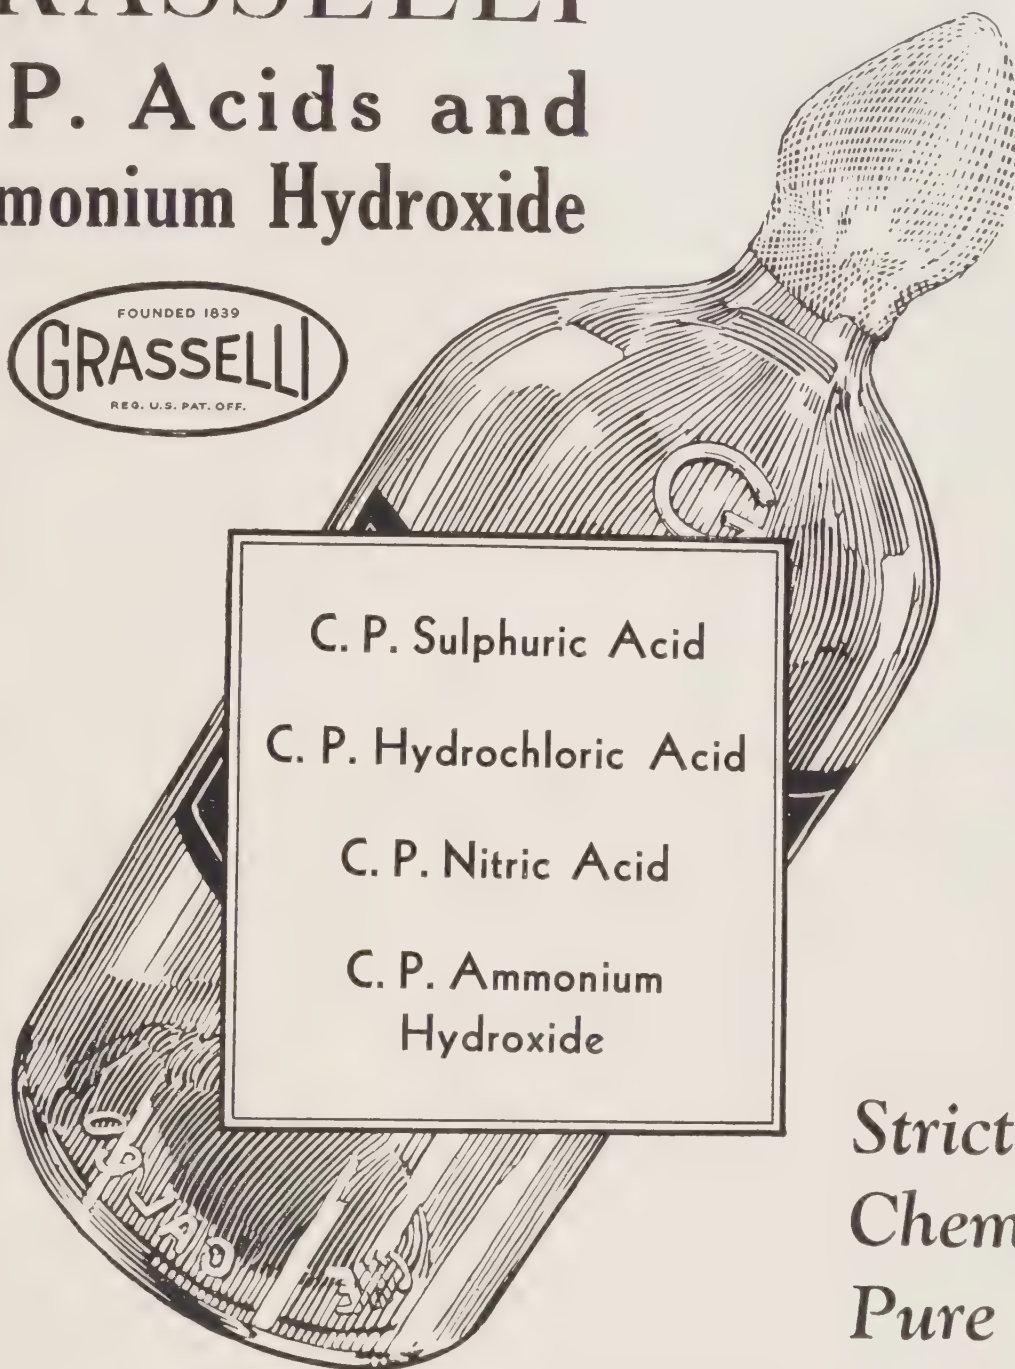

The Physics Building will house a small auditorium for lecture and demonstration purposes, a small instructional museum with temporary and permanent displays, a class room equipped for "talking pictures", the college instrument shop, and ample class and laboratory room for group and research work.

DON'T HANDICAP YOUR PRODUCT WITH NEEDLESS WEIGHT

The growth of industry follows the lines of least resistance. Dead weight, useless weight, non-productive weight, is a drag on industrial progress. Manufacturers, fabricators and assemblers who are not alive to this principle are beginning to lag behind.

The age we live in demands that we do away with inertia, make every pound a useful pound, save handling costs, save freight, save the expenditure of non-productive energy everywhere—on everything.

It is this insistent, demand that has brought the widespread call for Alcoa Aluminum and its strong alloys.

Aluminum Company of America is properly equipped physically, technically, and metallurgically to keep pace with the trend towards aluminum and its alloys. Its representatives are prepared to furnish full data on established applications. Its Development Engineers are prepared to cooperate with any manufacturers in new applications.

The Shansi Memorial Building, which will house a Chinese Art Gallery and be the headquarters for the Shansi Committee and the center in Oberlin of Oberlin's relations with China, will probably be built on North Main Street between the Art Building and the Hall Auditorium. It will be set back from the street and the approach laid out in a formal Chinese garden. A pagoda will house the Chinese bell.

This index includes the names of those connected with Oberlin College whose pictures appear in this book. That the index may not be construed to be a popularity guide, not more than five pictures have been indexed for any one person. Pages in the house section were eliminated first. As nearly as possible, the most representative pictures have been chosen.
